

ROUND 2 INTERVIEW TRANSCRIPT: AMY YANG
Friday, August 8, 2014

Q. Amy, congratulations, a great 4-under par round today, 7-under overall for the tournament so far. Take me through your day and what was really working for you.

AMY YANG: You know, I started really well, 2-under par after five holes. Then I got a little shaky in the middle but I had three birdies the last five holes. I'm happy with my round.

Q. Overall in your game you played really well at the U.S. Women's Open, you were talking about how great your game was feeling then. What's really working in your game right now?

AMY YANG: I'm putting better. I'm actually rolling it much better and making the putts like more than what I used to. And also just had a new coach like a year ago and my swing is getting better. Everything's working better.

Q. This week you're getting ready for a major coming up next week in Rochester. Similar golf courses, it seems, to what we're playing this week. How much is that going to help you heading into next week's major?

AMY YANG: You know, we play new course next week. I don't know because I haven't been to the course, but I'm sure grass will be just like this and I really like it. My playing is better and I think it's going to be a good week.

Q. You had a little bit of time off coming into this event. What do you do during your time off and how much of whatever you do do you think helps carry into this week?

AMY YANG: I had three weeks off and first week just totally off. I worked on my swing and a bit of everything to prepare for major next week.

Q. Great playing so far this week. Wishing you the best of luck over the weekend.

AMY YANG: Thank you.
