

CHARL SCHWARTZEL (-8)

Q. Charl, rounds of 66-68. How would you describe what you've been able to do the first two days here in Minnesota?

CHARL SCHWARTZEL: Yeah, you know, it might seem like a surprise, but the last few weeks I felt like I've played well, I just haven't been able to score very good. I haven't been too good on the greens and this week's changed. I've hit more shots closer, give myself a lot of opportunities and I've converted most of them, so that really just feels like the difference.

Q. While the results maybe haven't been there, how has that impacted your confidence where you try to get back to that world-class level we're used to seeing you in?

CHARL SCHWARTZEL: I'd be lying if I said it hasn't impacted it. It's hard missing cuts when you feel like you're playing well, but most of the time I go home, I regroup and come back out with a lot of enthusiasm. I am playing well, I have to keep reminding myself. So this week I've hit the ball good. I don't think I've hit it as good as the last few weeks, but I've managed to put it in good places on this golf course and I've hit enough iron shots close and converted the putts that's given me good scores.

Q. How have you been able to adjust with the stoppage, the resumption four months later of trying to find form and also create a schedule for the rest of 2020?

CHARL SCHWARTZEL: I didn't think it was going to affect me as badly, but hindsight, I came off good play at Pebble Beach, good play at Honda, and then it got stopped. At the Honda I really felt like I was starting to gain some good momentum and then it stopped. You know, I had enough time to prepare for the comeback, played well at RBC, but then after that, I felt like I've been playing well, but I've missed every cut. That burned my confidence a little bit. One step at a time now for me again and I'm happy with what I've put up in the last two days.

Q. Health-wise, how are you? Any lingering effects from what you've dealt with?

CHARL SCHWARTZEL: I'm good, I'm good. Out here last year I had my wrist problems. I feel healthy, no excuses there.
