

Q. So that was quite a ride out there, but you were able to kind of get it together at the end and help yourself a lot.

HARRISON FRAZAR: I think so. Yeah. A rocky start. To be honest with you, I was nervous this morning. And I don't know everything that -- what everything means. I just know that being 54 is a -- is a line. Right? And I knew I was close. I knew I needed to play well. Rocky start, righted the ship quickly.

Got a horrible break on the 10th hole. Drove it into a divot, and then got a little rattled, hit a few bad shots. That par 3 back there, No. 4, is just a brutally hard shot, and I got a little heavy, came back in the water, made double. And had to really kind of dig deep. And I tried to go at the par 5 in two, knocked it in the water again. And kind of resigned myself to the fact that stressing out about it, I wasn't going to do any better, so I just tried to hit some good shot, hit some birdies, and I did.

Q. What did you find at the end, two of your last three holes? What was that like, that moment?

HARRISON FRAZAR: I didn't find anything, I just kind of realized I had messed it up enough that now there was no sense in worrying about it, just try to hit a decent shot.

Like on 18, for example, I drove it beautifully. I hit a 3-wood off the downslope, trying to push it up to 20 yards short of the green and I hit it fat, which that's just nerves. That's just not being familiar with the situation, and a hard shot. I hit it fat. And then I hit a beautiful punch 9-iron in there to about eight feet. So it's just like this right now for me. And I think that's part of the learning curve. I told my caddie, I feel like I'm learning a lot of this stuff again, for the second time.

Q. How does the learning process not transfer over to (inaudible)?

HARRISON FRAZAR: I don't know. We'll see if I get in. That birdie, I guess, took me from 54th to 53rd.

That scoreboard is right there flashing, and I saw them go to projected, and I did not want to look. I looked down. I did not want to know where I was. When that putt went in, my caddie told me it looked like I just moved up a spot. So, yeah, it's -- I'm too old for this.

Q. Looks like you're (inaudible) I mean you --

HARRISON FRAZAR: I hope so. Yeah, I mean, right now I just -- I need reps. Like I said, this is all new, again. It's been a long break. I'm excited to be out here. I'm enjoying it. I enjoy the competition. I love being nervous. But I just got to get better at handling it.

Q. What do you think is your biggest take-away so far of what you have learned about yourself this event?

HARRISON FRAZAR: That I can still play. I know that. I feel like I'm a better putter than I was when I was on Tour. Sometimes I think I still can hit it like I used to, and I can't quite, but I can still hit it okay. So I think you have to be more patient at this age. And like these greens this week, I had no idea they were going to be as fast as they were. And I played a practice round Tuesday morning. It was cold. They weren't that fast. Only got nine holes in a pro-am. And I showed up Friday, it was like, holy smokes, look at these things. So it's all a learning curve, and just be a little bit more patient. Not only with golf but with myself.
